PRICE LIST

OF SELECT STRAWBERRY PLANTS

J. W. JONES & SON,
FRANKLIN, VA.

Dear Friend:

For the second consecutive year we are issuing only the simplest kind of Price List of our plants. We have as fine plants as we or anyone else has ever grown, but there are only a few hundred thousand of them in a few of the leading varieties. This is because last Spring we decided that we should devote our land to the production of crops that the defense program called for. This we have done and, therefore, have only a few acres of plants, for Spring digging. We will be able to fill your order with high grade and true-to-name stock and to ship them on time, with our usual guarantee of arrival in good condition. Send us your order early so as to be sure of getting what you wish. Send check or bank draft to cover and be sure to give plain shipping directions. Express is the best and cheapest method of shipping, except in small quantities.

LIST OF VARIETIES

DORSETT: Very popular in many localities and does very well indeed for us here. The plants grow vigorously, but do not often get too thick. The berries are a full red, with green cap, fine size and uniform shape. In productivity it will not quite equal Premier or Catskill, but it bears well and always sells for a good price. Just about the same ripening season as Premier.

FAIRFAX: Never makes too many plants, but is a vigorous grower and quite productive of berries of the largest size and the most superb flavor. None is quite its equal to eat out of hand. It is apt to turn dark quite soon after picking, but this does not mean that it is spoiled. Its ripening season is same as Premier also. Unquestionably the best for home garden.

DRESDEN: Enormously productive, but not a very good grower, except on rich soil and under favorable conditions. We can recommend it for trial only unless you have tested it and found it satisfactory. It too is an early variety.

BLAKEMORE: Unequalled as a market berry where it does well. Grows too thick in most places, but when kept thin will bear a nice crop. We do not recommend it for northern areas.

PREMIER: Still without a peer to grow, to stand frost, to produce, and to sell in all markets. We do not need to say more. It is the safest on the list for the individual who wishes early berries. Our stock is very clean and healthy. No one has better at any price.

CATSKILL: If you wish anything later than Premier, plant Catskill. It will bear as many berries, they are fine size, color, and good shape. A vigorous grower, we unhesitatingly recommend it as by far the best later season variety.

GEM: The best everbearer. We have a nice stock of the plants.
